

Meet the Faculty

Bang!—a wild cheer from the crowd—and up goes Coach Roskamp on the shoulders of his players after another victory during a successful season. A 26-7-1 record belongs to the Bomber Coach in the four years he has been at Ballard.

Mr. Roskamp was born in Wayburn, Saskatchewan, Canada. Because he was a minister's son, his family, four brothers and three sisters, moved quite frequently and he attended six different schools before he graduated from high school.

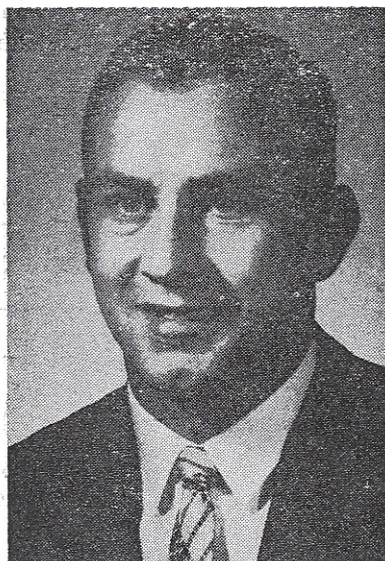

His main interest as a boy was active and competitive sports. "I used to get together with some of my friends on Sunday afternoons and play football or soccer," commented Mr. Roskamp.

After graduation, Mr. Roskamp attended the University of Wyoming for one year and then transferred to State College of Iowa. He played football all four years of college and along with working in his spare time, he paid his way through school. "I really enjoyed meeting people in college," remarked Mr. Roskamp, "but one thing I disliked about it was having to sit through courses in exploring music and art appreciation." These were required courses.

Mr. Roskamp married Ruth Bergman during his junior year of college. He now has three children.

His immediate plans are to obtain his master's degree and to continue coaching. He has attended Iowa State University, State University of Iowa, and the Louisiana Polytechnic Institute after his college graduation from ISC in 1958.

Woodworking and hunting are his hobbies. "I like to hunt pheasant and to work constructively with wood finishing."

When asked if he had some type of philosophy he wished to pass on, he answered, "I feel everyone should have a purpose in mind for everything they do and to stick to their beliefs, no matter what the consequences."
